HAM LEWIS VIEWS THE CANAL

WE MUST HAVE IT OURSELVES. ALONG WITH THE MARGE.

Marge Means Honduras, Nicaragus and Costa Rica-Fise Look Out for Japan and Germany—Chicago Still in Pangs Over Last Tuesday's Election.

Col. J. Hamilton Lewis whisked off of the train from Chicago early yesterday morning, whisked down Fifth avenue in a taxicab and into the Holland House and signed his name to the register with a flourish, but without the disturbance of a single whisker in the immaculate ambrosial set of chest protectors that are at once the pride and the envy of everybody else who has to face the raw ses from Lake Michigan on a wintry morning or the sunrise of an angry day But then Col. Ham always looks as if he had stepped from a fashion plate anyhow. He wore a double breasted travelling suit of his favorite brown, with hat to match, and in spite of the ng journey from Chicago and the paulopost relation of breakfast, was as Mable as if he had just dined. The Colonel knows by name everybody who works at the Holland House, and he had a smile and a cheery word of greeting for all, and from the moment he struck from the very walls.

Col. Lewis has come on to speak at the Andrew's Society dinner to-night and incidentally to attend to some matters in connection with the Heinze case.

the house geniality seemed to exude

"Chicago hash't yet got over that relection we had last Tuesday," he id. "Indeed it is the queerest thing in the shape of an election we have had in years. You see when William Lor-rimer was made a United States Senator It left a vacancy in our Congressional representation. I don't know whether people out here realize it or not, but Lorrimer is to Illinois what Platt used to be to New York, that is to say, Republican boss. When the question came up of nominating his successor his friend William J. Moxley, the oleo margarine king, was nominated. Some people thought Moxley was a butter-in." Col. Lewis at this point turned aside

Col. Lewis at this point turned aside to let his remark soak in, as it were.

"Well, the independent Republicans thought so strongly on the matter—nothing personal toward Moxley meant, I assure you—that they got together and nominated Dr. Carl Barnes. The Democrats put up Frank Ryan. Now in the regular election a few weeks before, Judge Dunne, who had been a Democratic Mayor and who ran for reelection, was beaten by the Republican candidate, though a Democratic City Council was elected, and it was charged that Dunne had been betrayed by the elements in the party that later nominated Ryan for Congress.

Congress.

"In the election a direct issue was made of Lorrimer, or rather Moxley, as a supporter of Speaker Cannon. Senator Cummins of Iowa came into the field and made an assault upon Cannon. The latter retorted by reading Cummins out of the Republican party. The Demogratic Congressional committee came on from Washington and took charge of the Democratic side of the campaign, and in the melée that resulted the Tribune and the Record-Herald bolted and supported the independent Republican candidate.

"When it came to voting the Democrats who were opposed to Ryan and who were trying to punish what they called sons by the small boys of millionaire neighbors because, the Colonel alleged in court, the Slupskys are Jews.

The celebration, he added, was the most important event in the history of the house of Slupsky.

Its chief feature was the reconciliation of Col. Abe Slupsky and his brother Jacob other since they told each other in their mother's home fifteen years ago what they thought of each other.

Abe's son Morris brought about the rapprochement by getting his uncle Jacob to attend his confirmation in B'nai Amoona synagogue Satureday.

this election, which was supposed be fraught with national issues, not a nigle national issue was determined nor single political result achieved. It was not a nigle political result achieved. It was not the election of a certain man as e execution of revenge. However, it is caused a split in parties and enmittee at have been carried out into the State, discussed in the feeling or the feeling of the second services. and so bitter has become the feeling en-and so bitter has become the feeling en-gendered by this undecisive little con-test that the Tribune has announced edi-torially that it will fight the whole State organization, while the Democrats, who have a fight coming on next year, are carrying the war into their own organi-tation. In my opinion the result of this meaningly simple Congressional campaign will be that we shall have four tickets for the Mayoralty next time—the regular will be that we shall have four tickets for the Mayoralty next time—the regular Republican and Democratic, with each independent party putting up a candi-date. This little election has produced more complications than any big election I ever saw."

Col. Lewis spent about six months last year studying the Philippines, Japan and China at close range, and he sees in the present Nicaraguan mixup some-thing over which he thinks Secretary Knox and the others who are looking on the present Nicaraguan mixup something over which he thinks Secretary Knox and the others who are looking on from Washington may well scratch their heads. He does not profess to be an alarmist, but as a man who has had his ear on the very ground of the Orient and heard the mutterings he believes that we should step in down there in Central America and gobble up not only Nicaragus but Honduras and Costa Rica. Then we should not have to bother our heads about American citizens being put to death to make them keep the peace in sister republics. Sole control of the Panama Canal and a good wide stretch of bank on either side is what Col. Lewis advocates, and he draws a picture of either China or Japan ready to swoop down upon the isthmus when the canal is ready for business, the Philippines being chucked bodily into the knapsack of a conqueror, England or Germany using Central American countries as bases of operations and our fleet and armies help-less.

"It is my judgment." said Col. Lewis.

"It is my judgment," said Col. Lewis, speaking calmly and deliberately, "that he time has come, if we are to remain in Asia either for the conquest of country or for the conquest of commerce, when we must take the Panama Canal as a construction of the conquest of commerce, when we have the panama canal as a construction of the conquest of the conqu purely American waterway, allowing no partions or the people of any other countries any control whatever. We shall be compelled to prevent the canal from being used as a byway through which the memies of our interests could float their thips. We shall be obliged to take prompt consequence of what is known as the groces. casession of what is known as the goose's sok of Central America and American-se Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. If we do not do this with respect to these countries their present state indicates that they will lend themselves to Japan or China, or that England or Germany would find them acquiescent in being sed as supply depots.

"In any conflict that we should get into a the Orient, when the Panama Canal the in the Orient. when the Panama Canal would be necessary for us to reach the scene of attack or defence, we should be immeasurably handicapped if the canal was not ours alone. We cannot hold the philippines against the future without having supreme control over the banks of the canal and of the countries that con-

The rising in Nicaragua has already learly indicated their stand of ennity owardus, It is time for us to take action, and Col. Lewis excused himself and went
